

Write an ALP that will examine a set of signed 16-bit nos. The numbers are stored from location dat1, the count of the nos. is stored in location cnt1. The ALP should detect if a number is negative or positive, if the number is negative it should convert it to positive no. and store it back in the same location. If the number is positive the ALP should not affect it.